You've just downloaded your publication license!

Congratulations! You're all set to include your figure DataFeminism-Fig1 in your publication. You're taking a big step in sharing your research with the world, and we're thrilled to support you!

Have questions about your license? Our help article on Publishing, citing, and permissions has got you covered.

As part of your Open-access license, we've created a public figure page for you. This page is a great way to showcase your work to a broader audience, increase visibility, and connect with other researchers.

Take a moment to check it out and make it your own. Editing your public figure page is easy and allows you to present your research in the best light possible.
